SEAMAN'S CASE
AGAINST THE U. R.
CLOSED BY CAPLAN

Attorney for Beggs Will Ask Lamm to Hold That Foundment Can't Be Found Against Directors.

RIGHT RESERVED TO PRESENT MORE DATA

Priest Indicates Defense Will Be That Plaintiff Voted for Directors' Acts Which He Now Complains Of.

The case of John W. Seaman of New York, demanding recovery of alleged wasted funds from an accounting by certain directors of conditions in the United Railways which led, in part, to the appointment of a receiver upon his petition, was closed before Special Master Henry Lamm at noon today by Ephraim Caplan, Seaman's counsel.

Theodore Rasseur, who has been representing John I. Beggs, a director and a defendant, gave notice that upon the resumption of the hearing in the afternoon he would argue a motion asking the Master to hold that upon the evidence there can be no judgment rendered against the individual directors, Sam Mitchell, attorney for Festus J. Wade and the Mercantile Trust Co., announced that he would join in the motion and Rasseur expressed his belief that counsel for other defendants would join also.

Individual Defendants.
The individual defendants in the case are Beggs, Wade, the Mercantile Trust Co. as trustee of the estate of James Campbell, a director, Richard McCulloch, Henry S. Priest and Annie E. Huttig as beneficiary and trustee under the will of Charles H. Huttig, a director in 1908, when power contracts complained of were executed.

Priest, representing the company, also stated he would submit a motion to strike out parts of the evidence as irrelevant and improperly admitted.

Caplan, in closing his case, reserved the right to later introduce data asked of the United Railways and the North American Co.

To show Milking Process.
That from the North American Co. is a list of stockholders of 1908, 1909 and 1918, desired so as to establish the community of interest of the North American Co. and the United Railways at the time the power contracts of the company were negotiated, those contracts, it is alleged, being the means of the alleged milking process to which the North American Co. submitted the United Railways.

The data asked of the United Railways includes the cost of the mill tax litigation from the date of the decision of the United States Supreme Court in 1908, including payments to attorneys and court costs. Seaman's petition alleges this to have exceeded $1,000,000.

In this connection, Caplan stated that he believed there were expenditures to attorneys in this case other than the total of $823,745.57, which it has been testified, has been spent for attorneys' fees subsequent to 1908.

Adkins "Doesn't Remember."
Priest reiterated a statement previously made by him. "It took the Supreme Court 18 months to decide that case."

Judge Lamm, who was a member of the Missouri Supreme Court at the time the decision was rendered, remarked mildly:

"We had a good many other cases during those 18 months, Judge."

Caplan also stated that he desired a statement of the amount of judgments held against the company and a total of the amount of suits now pending against the company.

Figures which Adkins brought into the hearing today did not satisfy Caplan on these points. "They do not show what I have asked for," he said, and Adkins was instructed to prepare the figures as desired.

Priest, in cross-examining Adkins, in reality opened the defense. He produced a certified copy of resolutions passed at stockholders' meeting.

SOLDIER BRINGS HOME BRIDE, HER
3 SISTERS AND HER PARENTS

"You Certainly Have Nerve," Official Tells Sergeant at Brest; Government Pays Expenses.

BREST, May 29.—American soldiers who escaped from the embrace of Mars but who fell before the darts of Cupid and married girls are permitted by Uncle Sam to bring home their brides at the expense of the Government.

Recently there appeared at the troop movement office a big Sergeant accompanied by a woman carrying a baby, three other young women, an elderly woman and an old gentleman. They were respectively the wife, baby, sisters-in-law, mother-in-law and father-in-law of the Sergeant. He wanted them to return to America with him.

"You win," said the desk officer, "you must have been the greatest soldier of them all; you certainly have nerve."

POLICE ORDERED TO STOP BOYS
'GRAFTING' ON AUTO OWNERS

Chief O'Brien says That Soliciting of Payment for "Grafting" Machines Must Be Ended.

The system of petty graft to which automobile owners are subjected by boys who loiter about ball parks, picture show houses and other places of amusement and damage machines, the owners of which refuse to hire them as watchmen, must be stopped, according to an order issued by Police Chief O'Brien to "Captains of the various districts. The order reads:

"The practice of collecting fees on the pretense of watching automobiles while the owners are at ball games, picture shows, etc., must be stopped. I have issued several orders on this subject and I want this to be the last. This nuisance is especially bad at the ball parks. It is nothing more nor less than soliciting bribes for not damaging cars. You will demand action on this subject from every officer in your command."

The order was issued following complaint to the Chief that the practice was being carried on under the eyes and with the full knowledge of policemen and Sergeants, who had taken no steps to stop it.

U. S. WITHHOLDS PERMISSION
FOR PASSAGE OF MEXICAN FORCE

Government's Decision Based on Belief Small Force Could Not Protect Americans.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—President Carranza has been notified by the American Government that permission for the passage of Mexican troops through American territory will be withheld until the present Mexican force has been permitted to move 2000 men from Agua Prieta to Juarez for operation against Francisco Villa's forces.

It was said officially that the decision of the Government was based upon the belief that the force which it was proposed to move through Arizona, New Mexico and Texas would not be able to furnish protection to American citizens in Northern Mexico because the revolutionists had cut the road between Juarez and Chihuahua.

It was made clear at the State Department, however, that in the event President Carranza could show there was greater immediate necessity for the protection of the Government and diplomatic corps on U. S. S. Rochester, NC-4 ready to continue flight, depending upon weather, Rochester will depart for Plymouth May 28.

TOWERS, READ AND BELLINGER Decorated
by Portuguese Government.

LISBON, Wednesday, May 28.—Commander John H. Towers, Lieutenant-Commander A. C. Read, and Lieutenant-Commander P. N. L. Bellinger, the commanders of the American transatlantic seaplanes, were received today by President Canto y Castro, who was formerly an admiral in the Portuguese navy. The three aviators were decorated by the act of the Portuguese Government in bestowing upon all three of them the Grand Cross of the Order of the Tower and Sword.

The municipal council of Lisbon today decided to award a gold medal to the aviators.

The newspapers print long articles expressing friendship for the United States and all reproduce the phrase: "You have done what the Portuguese did centuries ago, but they reached America by sea, while you reached Portugal by air."

GERMANS SAY 198 U-BOATS WERE LOST DURING WAR

By the Associated Press.
BASEL, May 29.—Germany lost 198 submarines during the war, according to statistics on this branch of the German naval service published in the Berlin Vossische Zeitung.

This number included seven submarines interned in foreign ports and 14 destroyed by their own crews.

More than 3000 sailors lost their lives in the submarine sinkings, the statistics show, while several thousand others lost their reason and had to be committed to lunatic asylums.

TOWBOAT MAKES NEW RECORD
IN GOVERNMENT RIVER SERVICE

Records for the round trip by the Government River Service to New Orleans were broken yesterday by the arrival of the towboat Oscar F. Barrett with 1088 tons of sugar and coffee, 18 days after her departure from St. Louis with 1090 tons of merchandise. This time contains a subtraction of 18 hours in port at New Orleans. The average time of the trip is from 22 to 23 days.

SIX PLANES ON CROSS-COUNTRY
TRIP PASS OVER ST. LOUIS

De Havilland Bombers Cover 270 Miles From Kansas City in 3 Hours; Stop at Scott Field.

PARIS, May 29.—The six De Havilland airplanes which are making a cross-country tour to stimulate enlistments in the air service, left Kansas City, Mo., for Scott Field at 10:30 a. m., and passed over St. Louis shortly after 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, making the 270 miles in three hours. They will stop at Scott Field for gas and then proceed this afternoon to Indianapolis.

Before taking off at Kansas City, Lieutenant-Colonel H. B. Claggett, the commanding officer, said the squadron's next week to make the exhibition flights which were to have been given here yesterday, but which were cancelled when the rain prevented the planes from leaving Kansas City.

The squadron was unable to stop at St. Louis today because of the necessity of getting to Indianapolis in time for the automobile races tomorrow. After returning to St. Louis and Springfield, the aviators plan to go to Chicago, thence to Minneapolis and St. Paul.

ROGET'S FLIGHT TO MOROCCO
NOT AS LONG AS NC-4'S JUMP

By the Associated Press.
BREST, May 29.—The States naval seaplane NC-4 probably will start from Lisbon tomorrow, weather permitting, Lieutenant-Commander A. C. Read, in charge of the craft, wishes to reach England on Memorial day, according to a wireless message picked up here by the U. S. S. George Washington from the U. S. S. Rochester, which is lying in the roads at Lisbon.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, May 29.—Further than the brief message received last night from Lieutenant-Commander Read, commander of the craft, the Navy Department early today was without information concerning resumption of the transatlantic flight by the seaplane NC-4, now at Lisbon. That message, filed at 9:10 p. m., Lisbon time, stated: "NC-4 will not start tomorrow, but have no reason for the delay. However, as previous reports had indicated, the machine and its personnel were in fit condition for continuing the flight, the assumption was that weather conditions unfavorable to a start had developed."

Delayed messages coming through to the Navy Department yesterday showed that Commander Read had not intended starting for Plymouth, England, yesterday as was expected. His cable report of the arrival of the NC-4 at Lisbon stated he expected to resume the flight today. Despite difficulties in the United States, as shown by the message last night, considerable delay is experienced in communications exchanged between the Navy Department and Lisbon. Commander Read in a message to the Navy Department yesterday said: "NC-4 left Ponta Delgada 10:18 G. M. T. (4:18 a. m., Washington time), May 27. Wind about 340 degrees, speed 23 miles, visibility good. Sighted all day except No. 3, which was missed on account of compass jarring out. Speed first part 88 knots. Run uneventful. Landed Lisbon, 4:01 p. m., Washington time. Personnel and seaplane excellent condition."

A dispatch from Admiral Plunkett follows: "NC-4 arrived safely and crew was enthusiastically received by officials of Portuguese Government and diplomatic corps on U. S. S. Rochester. NC-4 ready to continue flight, depending upon weather. Rochester will depart for Plymouth May 28."

MAYOR KIEL SAYS HE WILL BE
CANDIDATE AGAIN IN 1921

Mayor Kiel, in conversation with reporters today, said he would be a candidate for re-election to a third term as Mayor at the April, 1921, election.

"I will run again at the next election," said the Mayor. "I like the job and have had a good time, and I think the people like me."

He said he recently completed a compilation of figures showing that he addressed 1414 public and semi-public meetings in his first four-year term. "On one day I addressed a Presbyterian assembly, the Beer Bottlers' Union and a meeting of undertakers," said the Mayor. "I know more people than any Mayor in Detroit ever had. I have addressed more than half a million St. Louisans since I have been in office."

Since the mayoralty term was made four years in the late 70s, no Mayor has served three terms, and only one other, Holla Wells, served two. In the early days William Carr Lane served six one-year terms.

President's Memorial Day
Message to American People

WASHINGTON, May 29.—PRESIDENT WILSON has cabled the following Memorial day message to the American people:

"My Fellow Countrymen: Memorial day wears this year an added significance and I wish, if only by a message, to take part with you in its observance and in expressing the sentiments which it inevitably suggests.

"In observing the day we commemorate not only the reunion of our own country, but also now the liberation of the world from one of the most serious dangers to which free government and the free life of men were ever exposed.

"We have buried the gallant and now immortal men who died in this great war of liberation with a new sense of consecration. Our thoughts and purpose now are consecrated to the maintenance of the liberty of the world and of the union of its people in a single comradeship of liberty and of right. It was for this that our men conscientiously offered their lives. They came to the field of battle with the high spirit and pure heart of crusaders.

"We must never forget the duty that their sacrifice has laid upon us of fulfilling their hopes and their purpose to the utmost. This, it seems to me, is the impressive lesson and the inspiring mandate of the day.

WOODROW WILSON."

WAR DEPARTMENT TO SELL SURPLUS MEATS

Invites Bids From Large State and Other Institutions on Canned Goods.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, May 29.—First steps by the War Department looking to the disposition in this country of part of the enormous surplus stock of canned and cured meat held by it were taken today with the mailing of invitations for bids to some 1200 of the larger state and municipal hospitals, asylums and charitable institutions. Invitations also were sent to officials of the Salvation Army, the Purchasing Board of New York City and the New York State Hospital Board.

Conferences were held recently between War Department officials and the industry, and it was agreed to export as much of the 142,000,000 pounds of surplus of meat as possible. Institutions in this country which now have been in the habit of buying surplus meat from the government are expected to be sufficiently large to permit them to purchase in carload lots.

"While it is the desire of the War Department to dispose of all its surplus foodstuffs in the United States," said an official statement, "not being equipped to conduct a retail business, the department must seek purchasers who can buy in sufficiently large quantities to enable it to make sales through the organization that it has created to dispose of surplus stocks."

The canned meat is stored in 10 great warehouses located in Eastern and Midwestern cities.

CONSERVATIVES IN GERMANY ASSAIL COUNTER OFFERS

One Newspaper Condemns Proposals as "Suicide" — Government Organ Thinks Allies Will Reject Them.

SUGGESTED ALSACE SHARE INDEMNITY

Proposal Made That Special Committee Consider Colonial Questions on Basis of Wilson's 14 Points.

By the Associated Press.
BERLIN, Wednesday, May 28.—The conservative press of Berlin condemns the counter proposals to the peace terms submitted by Germany, especially the financial and military concessions which are granted.

The Pan-German Gazette brands the reply as "suicide" and the Post says: "The German people are doomed to slavery between two masters until a new Germany arrives to break the chains."

The Kreuz Zeitung is skeptical of the success of the counter proposals, despite what it calls "Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau's submissiveness," and the Tagliche Rundschau says: "The German reply is fully as depressing as the Entente terms."

Theodor Wolff in the Tageblatt says that the whole counter-draft corresponds to the democratic ideals of right, and in no way to military nationalist conceptions. He demands that the occupation troops shall return home in six months at the latest might also be reckoned as meant to effect the preservation of German sovereignty.

Vorwärts Doubts Acceptance.
Vorwärts says: "Everyone in Germany has read the text with heavy hearts. If sober reason prevailed at Paris it would jump at this proposal."

Vorwärts, however, thinks that the signing of the Entente draft will be insisted upon.

According to a semi-official statement, the full indemnity which Germany offers to pay in her counter proposals to the peace terms will include sums going to Belgium against advances by the allies and also the value of all military and civil property surrendered by Germany since the armistice.

It is further conditioned upon territorial arrangements. That is, if the imperial territory is reduced, the sum to be paid must be correspondingly distributed. Alsace-Lorraine and Posen, for instance, bearing their proportionate shares.

Germany's counter proposals include the following points, according to an unofficial summary available today:

Germany offers to disarm all of her battle ships, on condition that a part of her mercantile fleet be restored to her.

She proposes that there be no territorial changes without consultation of the populations affected.

The cession of Upper Silesia and the claims of East Prussia, West Prussia and Memel are emphatically rejected.

It is stipulated that Danzig shall become a free port and the River Vistula be neutralized.

Occupied territory is to be evacuated within six months. It is established with Germany as a member, Germany shall continue to administer her colonies in accordance with the principles of the league as its mandatory.

Germany offers to pay 20,000,000 marks in gold by the year 1925 as indemnity, and to make annual payments from 1927 onward to a total not in excess of 100,000,000 marks in gold.

The proposal of the German peace delegation regarding Germany's former colonies points out to the peace conference that an absolutely impartial settlement of all colonial claims was promised in number five of the 14 points mentioned in President Wilson's message to Congress, Jan. 8, 1918, and claims that "an impartial settlement presupposes a hearing of both sides before a decision is taken, and such hearing has not taken place."

Suggests Special Committee.
"While appealing to the promise, and especially to the principle that the regulation of colonial claims should take place with due regard equally to the interest of governments and the governed," says the German note, "that proposal is made to refer colonial questions to a special committee. This committee to be formed of mandatories and experts of both parties, shall take as the subject of its deliberations the aforementioned point five and other matters mentioned in President Wilson's four speeches in 1918 referring to the subject, Secretary Lansing's note of Nov. 5, 1918; the article of the draft peace conditions relating to colonial questions, and section 9 of the League of Nations proposals, as well as the interests of the populations and the Governments concerned."

The proposal argues that the demand that Germany renounce her overseas possessions cannot be reconciled with the armistice terms and holds the view that Germany's claim to the restoration of her colonies is just.

Germany, it says, "is ready, should a league of nations be formed in which she is immediately elected with equal rights, to carry on the administration of her colonies in accordance with the principles of the league of nations and in given circumstances as its mandatory."

Point 5 in President Wilson's 14 points for peace was as follows: "Free, open-minded and absolutely impartial adjustment of all colonial claims, based upon a strict observance of the principle that in determining all such questions of sovereignty the interests of the populations concerned must have equal weight with the equitable claims of the Government whose title is to be determined."

SHERIFF RECOGNIZED LEADERS OF MOB THAT HANGED JAY LYNCH

tence was pronounced and the prisoner shook his head. Judge Thurman then talked for perhaps five minutes. He began by observing that he did not know that he could say anything that would do the prisoner any good. He wished to remind him that it was never too late for a criminal to reform.

"He had read of crimes committed by the prisoner. It was the case of a man of great nerve and determination gone wrong. No doubt had he used his life to a better purpose he would have risen higher than any man in the courtroom. No creature was so low, so vile, that the court would not be willing to reach down and help him."

Lynch's Statement.
"The Judge was visibly nervous," Sewell continued, "but Lynch was fully composed. When Judge Thurman pronounced the sentence of life imprisonment, Lynch arose and said he had no intention of killing Sheriff Harlow and that, as for Sheriff Harlow's son, the killing was an accident. He declared no man regretted the killings more than he."

"Judge Thurman, as he arose to leave the bench, remarked to the spectators that any action of theirs could not bring back poor old John Harlow, and admonished them that we are dependent on the law for protection. He then hurriedly left the courtroom and the town. As Judge Thurman passed out, the other officers, including six additional deputies sworn in an hour before, surrounded the prisoner and rushed him into the Judge's chambers, closing the door behind them."

"The crowd filed out of the courtroom, muttering threats of lynching. Stella P. Lynch of Kansas City, sister of the convicted man, who owns the homestead farm 14 miles north here, came out of the crowd and knocked on our door, asking to see her brother. She spoke in a loud tone and impertinent, and I refused to admit her. Then the prisoner's mother came and I admitted her. She spoke with her son about 10 minutes and left."

"I then admitted the wife and baby. I removed the handcuffs so Lynch could hold the child. He toyed with the baby and talked with his wife, admonishing her to give the child an education. He kissed the baby several times. When his wife had been with him about 15 minutes I heard a great whoop on the steps below and I rushed to barricade the door."

"Tom Martin, attorney for the family, beat me to the door and got out. Before I could close the door the mob was at the threshold. I would say about 50 men. I drew my revolver and threatened to kill the first man that advanced, for they had stopped suddenly when I drew the revolver. One of them shouted, 'Be careful of Sewell,' and I answered, 'You had better be.'

"I was standing, my back to the door, and near the jury box, when two men rose from the jury box and pointed my arms, pulling me over the rail. They were a blacksmith and a liverman. I struggled to free myself, when others pounced upon me and pushed me back in the room."

"Lynch quickly passed the child to his wife, who the mob seized him. She fainted in the arms of Deputy Sheriff Stonum. A merchant had a rope, which he threw over Lynch's neck.

Dressed Down Stairway.
"The nose was drawn by a quick jerk, and the crowd dragged the prisoner over some seats and through the aisle of the courtroom and down two flights of steps, no doubt breaking his neck, for he did not emit a sound. Others in the crowd that overpowered me and dragged the prisoner out were a farmer, two returned soldiers, a threshing machine operator, a farmer and an employee of a bottling company."

"With the assistance of my wife, we fought the men as hard as we could, and after they got in the room the other officers put up a fight to save the prisoner. After they had virtually killed the man, I was restrained by my friends from going downstairs after them, as they feared for my safety. No one or 10 men could have restrained that mob."

"The body swung from the tree from 3:45 to 5:30 p. m. when I ordered it cut down. People passed all afternoon viewing it and making facetious remarks. I would have had it removed sooner, but was threatened by crowds and told not to touch it."

"I recognized men in the mob from Nevada, Golden City, Minden and Liberal, and there were hundreds of others from all the country side. For several days previous to the trial we had heard vague rumors of lynching, but knew of no organized effort to this end. I was prepared for the situation as well as could be in the circumstances."

Sheriff Sewell did put up a stubborn fight, according to a number of witnesses. His hands and body bear many severe bruises. Prosecutor Timmonds said Sewell fought bravely to save the prisoner, and should not be blamed.

"I left the courtroom shortly after the Judge to get the papers to take the prisoner to Jefferson City," said Timmonds, "and when I came out of my office across the street from the Courthouse saw a large crowd congregated about an elm tree about 30 feet from the north entrance to the Courthouse. I ran to the edge of the crowd, but could not see the prisoner or who had hold of the rope. I did see a man climb the tree and throw the rope over a limb. I then left the scene."

"My office has no inquisitorial powers, or I would summon witnesses at once. A complaint could be made to a justice of the township and on this witness could be summoned. I may adopt this course. Otherwise, we would probably have to await the September grand jury, or Judge Thurman could impanel a special grand jury. I must have time to think, as the situation is very serious. I will have a definite plan of procedure to announce in a short time."

Shackle on Lynch's Foot.
An Oregon boot, a heavy iron shackle, was on Lynch's right foot when he was hanged. The handcuffs had not been replaced on his wrists.

Twenty years ago George Hepler, a Barton County farmer, was hanged the mob was at the scene of yesterday's execution for the murder of a woman and two children.

Lamar today is normally quiet, except that the general topic of conversation is the lynching. "No inquest was held by Coroner Robert E. Harmon, according to Timmonds, as it was not considered advisable to hold a hearing last night. It is reported here that investigators came to the lynching yesterday near Mineral Wells, Miss., of a negro accused of attacking one of three white women whom he dragged from a buggy on a country road."

EAST ST. LOUISAN CITED FOR D. S. C. FOR EXTREME HEROISM

Sergt. John E. Gaughy Killed German Officer and Two Machine Gunners and Took a Prisoner.

Sergt. John E. Gaughy, 25 years old, employed at the National Hotel in East St. Louis, has been cited for the Distinguished Service Cross for extreme heroism in action in Evergreen Woods, France, Nov. 6, 1918.

The citation states that while on a daylight patrol he displayed exceptional bravery, when with one other man he fought a large force of the enemy, killing a German officer and two machine gunners who were attempting to put their guns in action.

"Surrounded by the enemy he captured a German Corporal," the citation continues, "and fought his way out of his peril, not having time to load his rifle. He marched his prisoners to the rear at the point of his bayonet, thereby running the risk of being captured himself, in order to carry out orders to take at least one prisoner."

PARADE OF 354TH TOMORROW LIKELY TO BE AFTER NOON

St. Louis and Eastern Missouri Unit of 89th Division Will March as Soon as Arrival Permits.

The parade of the 354th Infantry, St. Louis and Eastern Missouri unit of the 89th Division, known as one of the foremost shock divisions of the American Expeditionary Force, will be held tomorrow as early as its arrival will permit.

The first of the trains carrying the 354th left Camp Upton, Long Island, shortly after noon yesterday, and should arrive here tomorrow morning. The last of the trains probably will be several hours later in arriving. While the Mayor's Committee has proceeded on the theory that the parade could start at 9:30 a. m., it seems more likely that the parade will be held in the afternoon.

Confusion has been caused by dispatches stating that trains carrying units of the 89th Division are at various points along the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and are due in St. Louis tonight. Some of the Mayor's committee have assumed that these trains carry the 354th Infantry, but the information received by the Post-Dispatch from its staff correspondent at Camp Upton indicates that the first three trains which will arrive here are the 353rd, a Kansas regiment. The 353rd will not parade here.

Railroad officials, however, insist that the first three trains, which were due in Cincinnati early this afternoon, carried the 354th, and the Mayor's Committee made its plans on this basis, preferring to take the chance of being too early rather than the chance of being too late in welcoming the 354th.

The Mayor's Committee received a telegram yesterday from M. P. Jones, commanding the 354th, saying that the 354th, with 39 officers and 1629 enlisted men, would arrive in St. Louis about 9 a. m. tomorrow. It was not stated whether this would be the time of arrival of the first train or of a later train.

Veterans to Parade at Noon

Plans for the Memorial Day parade have been changed, so that the parade will start at noon through the Court of Honor. This line will include the G. A. R., Spanish War Veterans and Sons of Veterans. It was planned to have the veterans, after their parade, take seats in a reserved section of the grandstand, and review the parade of the 354th, and then start in automobiles for the afternoon observance of Memorial Day at Jefferson Barracks.

The parade of the 354th is not held until mid-afternoon, the veterans probably will not wait for it. At whatever hour the trains of the 354th arrive, the plan of serving breakfast at the Red Cross canteen station in the Union Station yards, and then forwarding the trains to the Union boulevard entrance of Forest Park, will be followed. Relatives of the men coming on the earlier trains will be able to see them at the park, while waiting for the last train.

To Pass Over Sixth Street.
The downtown part of the parade route has been changed to pass over Sixth street, instead of Broadway, from Washington avenue to Olive street. This is done to avoid interference with the Broadway cars, which are needed to carry passengers to the Memorial day exercises at Jefferson Barracks.

After the formation in parade order, and before the line starts, the relatives' auxiliary will present the regiment with an 89th Division banner, the presentation being made by Lee Lincoln, 4-year-old son of Capt. Atwell T. Lincoln of the 354th, who was killed in action Sept. 18.

As has been announced, the parade will include 192 St. Louis and Eastern Missouri men of the 354th Infantry, the majority of which is from Nebraska. Tickets for grandstand seats are being issued by the relatives' auxiliary to relatives of men in the 354th, as well as the 354th. The auxiliary has its headquarters at 908 Olive street.

Flowers will be strewn before the returning soldiers in the Twelfth street Court of Honor, and contributions of flowers will be received on trucks at Union Station, at Grand avenue and Lindell boulevard and Grand avenue and Hebert street, up to 10 a. m. Residents of the suburbs are asked to bring flowers for the truck at Union Station.

Men of the 89th Division, who returned ahead of their commands, decided at a meeting yesterday that they would wait for a consultation with the commanding officer of the 354th, before deciding whether to march in the companies with their former comrades, or in a separate body at the end of the parade. This is because it is not known whether the regiment will carry rifles and packs, as the 138th Infantry did in its parade. If it should do so, the men without such equipment would be out of place in the companies.

An announcement has been made as to how long the regiment will stay here before departing for Camp Funston for demobilization, but it is supposed that the departure will be as soon as possible after the parade and relatives' reception. The regiment will march from the city hall plaza to the Union Station yards after the reception.

Route of Tomorrow's Parade of the 354th

THE parade route of the 354th Infantry tomorrow will be two blocks shorter than that traversed by the 138th Infantry May 9. The change is in making Sixth street, instead of Broadway, the eastern extreme. The route, which is more than five and one-half miles in length, is:

Starting point, Lindell boulevard and King's highway. East on Lindell to cutoff, then to Locust street. East, on Locust to Twentieth street. North on Twentieth to Washington avenue. East on Washington to Sixth street. South on Sixth to Olive street. West on Olive to Eleventh street. North on Eleventh to Washington. West on Washington to Twelfth street. Through Court of Honor to City Hall Plaza.

314TH ENGINEERS LIKELY TO PARADE HERE SATURDAY

Plans for the parade of the 314th Engineers, of the 89th Division, will be made as soon as more definite information is received.

A telegram from Maj. Gurdon G. Black, commander of the Second Battalion of the regiment, and formerly engineer in charge at the city waterworks, today brought the information of the probable arrival Saturday.

A dispatch from Washington announced that the 314th Engineers would parade in St. Louis. The regiment has been at Camp Devens, Mass., since its arrival in Boston last week. Other units of the 89th Division have arrived at Hoboken.

Plans for the parade of the 314th Engineers will be made as soon as more definite information is received.

80 MEN MISSING IN COBLENZ DISTRICT FIRE

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, May 29.—As a result of a fire in a building occupied by American troops in the Coblenz district and the explosion of a munitions dump yesterday, 80 men are missing, according to a Cologne dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co.

The foregoing report bears a similarity to one received from London Tuesday night reporting the destruction by fire of a building used as a barracks by occupation troops at Ludwigsafen, on the Rhine opposite Mannheim, causing the death of 40 soldiers and the injury of 100 others. This dispatch also was based on a German report, coming from Berlin by way of Copenhagen to a London news agency. Ludwigsafen is in the French area of occupation.

PILOT OF NC-3 DESCRIBES HAZARDOUS TRIP FROM TREPASSEY TO AZORES

Tells of Long Struggle in Rough Sea, With Waves Chopping Plane to Pieces

In Constant Danger in 205-Mile Water Run After Bad Weather Forced U. S. Naval Aviators to Make Sea Landing to Determine Position.

The Post-Dispatch printed Wednesday Commander John H. Towers' graphic account of the flight of the naval seaplane NC-3 to the Azores from Trepassey Bay, and the wrecking of his craft in the stormy waters off the islands, so that it was unable to continue the voyage across the Atlantic. Today, Commander Richardson, one of the pilots of the NC-3, gives herewith for the Post-Dispatch his version and impressions of the adventures encountered.

By Commander Holden C. Richardson
Pilot of the NC-3.

(Copyright, 1919, by Universal Service.)

LISBON, May 27.—After leaving Trepassey Friday evening all went well with us until 9:30 New York time, Saturday morning. At that time we had covered 1200 knots, or 1380 land miles, in 15.3 hours.

From the time we passed station ship No. 13 we had passed through five hours of rain squalls and fog, so thick at times as to make it impossible to see the horizon or the surface of the ocean. The air was so rough that the navigator was not satisfied with the accuracy of his sights.

We had sighted no patrols after passing destroyer No. 13 and considered it advisable to make a sea landing in order to determine our position. The only vessel we had seen was far off to the southward of our course, as we figured later. It probably was the U. S. H. Marblehead.

Gas Supply Running Low.
From the appearance of the sea, a landing seemed feasible and the division commander, after consultation with the pilots, agreed to make the attempt, because our gas supply was running low and it was essential to employ what we had to the best advantage. Besides, in the frequent squalls, it was not impossible that we should suddenly run into land with mountains ahead.

Accordingly, we swung around for a spiral landing and approaching the surface cautiously, picked a suitable opportunity, throttled the engines close to the surface and made contact. The first contact was on the crest of a sharp wave which dropped from under us; the next was on the far side of the next wave, in a deep hollow.

We hauled up well and stalled the engine, expecting to stick, but this wave also dropped sharply and let us fall heavily on the sharp crest of the following wave. The last blow was a sharp one and examination showed that it had been severely damaged. The tubular struts of the front engine were bent like a bull dog's legs and the flying wires in the engine panels were very slack, due to the settling of the wings. The alleron leads also were slack.

Further examination showed the hull to be leaping forward, but not dangerously. The hull longitudinal members were buckled and cracked as well as several floor frames. The bottom planking still held, but the principal bulkheads were damaged really where they delivered their load to the main hull trusses. One truss wire was carried away.

Heavy Sea Running.
It was at once apparent that it would be impracticable to resume the flight even if the surface were smooth, which was not the case. Ten to twelve foot waves were running, superimposed on a heavy ground swell.

To communicate by radio it was necessary to relocate the radio generator in the ship's stern of the propeller. This was done and by running the port engine we were able to radiate for a range of 10 miles, but although we could hear the patrol boats working, our messages were not acknowledged. From our supposed position, which we later confirmed, we were about 45 miles southwest of Horta. The wind favoring us, we started to sail against a course that would take us toward the Azores. About 2 p. m. we intercepted a wireless report that the NC-4 was at Horta alongside the Columbia and ready to proceed to Ponta Delgada the next day. NC-1 was reported down with a damaged left wing and the search for her was on.

At 4 p. m. we set the watch and I took the trick from 4 to 8. Nothing unusual occurred in that period. I got about three hours' sleep though the racking of the wings on the hull and the swash of the water in the hull were rather disconcerting. My sleep was far from satisfying.

Waves Damage Plane.
On the following morning, Sunday, I stood the 2 to 4 watch. At about 2:30 the sea increased and while coasting down the face of a big wave, the lower elevator caught in the water, wrenching the tail badly and starting the elevator to carry away. At 4 o'clock it was trailing on the edge of the left lower wing and caught and broke the tails of the wing ribs. We soon decided to cut away the broken portion.

Just 22 hours after landing the left tip float broke away and put us in serious condition. One of the crew had to go out on the right wing tip to keep the left wing from going under.

We again tried a broadcast, S. O. S., giving our position and asking for assistance. We also flew our ensign as a distress signal. We got no acknowledgments. We could not open up the port engine because it threw the screw into the waves and also made it pound so hard on the rough seas that there was danger of starting serious leakage. The screw involved the danger that the right wing tip float would be wrenched loose. Besides the mounting of this engine was loosened by the rough landing and the engine racked badly at 1000 revolutions per minute.

Constantly on Watch.

We found it necessary to man the controls and sail astern and to prevent the plane from yawing, the two pilots, assisted by the pilot-engineer stood watch and watched until we tied up at Ponta Delgada.

Meanwhile the other members of the crew were not idle. It was necessary for the navigator to keep track of position and course and whoever was available took turns standing on the right wing tip or pumping out water, tightening the wing tip float wires and cutting away damaged portions of the lower wings as they continued to disintegrate.

The radio operator when not otherwise engaged kept listening in at intervals and continued to attempt signaling. He intercepted a message telling of the rescue of the crew of NC-1. This was good news to us and we expected soon to see some destroyer come racing our way. Later we were disappointed to learn that the search for us was on to the west of Horta.

At 8:27 a. m. New York time, Sunday, we sighted Pico in a bank of land clouds. Bearings and a sun sight enabled us to locate ourselves as 45 miles, southeast of Pico. We had two hours' gas left and debated whether to land, attempt to taxi in to land. It looked impracticable, however, in the heavy sea running and would almost certainly have involved the loss of our right wing float and probably serious damage to the hull.

Aim to Sail Toward Patrol.
The idea, therefore, was abandoned in favor of sailing to leeward and trusting that the wind would remain favorable so as to permit us to make the course that would carry us northward of St. Michael, through the patrol set for NC-4 between Horta and Ponta Delgada and possibly in the route of shipping.

The decision was arrived at after serious mulling. It involved another night at sea and it was hard to give up the sight of land. The seas were running at times 10 feet high and a 10 to 45 knot wind was blowing. Constant vigilance was necessary at the controls to keep from yawing and losing our remaining float.

The danger was very real because the waves were curling and curling and at times we would coast as if on a surf board at a speed close to 25 knots astern. The stern board took away some of our power to control our course, because it reduced the speed relatively to the tail surfaces.

The right wing had lost its trailing edge, the lower elevator was catching frequently, several hinges were gone and the violent jerks were racking the tail and wrecking the upper elevator.

Steering Became Very Difficult.
At sundown Sunday we found by experiment that we could get improved rapidly. While Commander Towers was commanding the works to the pilot, Boatwain Moore sighted land ahead at 10:23, Greenwich time. The land was soon made out to be St. Michael.

The effect of the discovery was remarkable. All hands fully realized the seriousness of the situation and the consequences that might at any time follow the loss of the right wing tip float, but aside from making preparations to have fresh water available in case we should capsize and providing lashings to fasten us to the wreckage, none of us communicated our thoughts to the others.

Radio Still Fails to Work.
Now, however, with land in sight and danger passed, all hands cheered up and came out on deck and spirits rose steadily as the land became plainer. It was impossible to steer so the should make Ponta Delgada with certainty.

All Hands Accounted For.
As soon as we had secured the plane at the moorings, got our things together and made our way to shore, Admiral Jackson and his staff, Capt. Wortman, the Governor of the Islands, the United States Consul, the President of the Town Council and others were on hand to welcome us.

We were tired and dirty, but happy for all hands on the three planes were accounted for. We had our sea legs on and for want of the usual exercise, we walked the way up the steps to the admiral's quarters.

As soon as the reception was over and we had been very much photographed, we had to appear on the balcony while the local band rendered "The Star Spangled Banner." The crowd then formed an impromptu parade and cheered us again and again.

Running the cable home to let our families know we were safe, we took hot baths and made ourselves more presentable. We then had dinner and were glad to get a chance to sleep in real beds once more. We enjoyed a good night's rest, knowing that those at home also would sleep well, knowing we were safe.

Two Hours From Island.

About 10:00 Greenwich (noon New York time on Monday) it was apparent we would make Ponta Delgada in about two hours. We were making about six knots at the time. Shortly afterward we ran into another heavy rain squall and a sharp shift of wind. Our bucket drain was carried away, letting the plane yaw badly and the left lower wing went under.

Finally it cleared up again and the land meanwhile was getting steadily plainer. The highhouse, sugar factory, radio station, houses and trees were clearly visible. Farms, vineyards and roads took on form and color and it was plain that we should soon be sighted.

We had to keep well off shore, however, as it was likely that a sea breeze would be encountered close to the island which might drive us ashore on the rugged coast to the west of Ponta Delgada. Yet we did not want to go too far out when the time came to taxi into the harbor.

Sight of U. S. Destroyer.

About 10:30, Greenwich (2:30 p. m. New York time) we sighted the United States destroyer Harding standing out from the harbor, shooting spray clear over her bridge as she raced toward us. We signalled her to stand by as we ran in under our own power.

Except for a merchant ship at the breakwater and the shipping visible over the breakwater which we had sighted about an hour before, she was the first vessel sighted since we had made our landing.

The sea was too rough for an attempt at taxiing when we arrived off four miles from the port. We found it increasingly difficult to maintain a course clear of the shore and had to work strongly against the wind which could be done only at considerable risk.

That this risk was real was proved shortly, for as we arrived off the breakwater, the right wing tip float let go, and dragging by two wires ripped the deck open and nearly made us capsize in full sight of the harbor.

We cut the float adrift and also started the center engine. By sharp use of the controls we were able to keep right side up. We signalled the Harding to be ready to send a boat and asked the Melville to stand by to take us under the wings as we came to our moorings.

Wind in Favor of Flyers.

Fortunately the wind was strong and the altitudes were effective. With a man on the weather wing we were able to make our mooring, taking a tow a short distance from the mooring and putting a man on each wing to aid in balancing.

COCOANUT OIL MAKES A SPLENDID SHAMPOO

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Multifid coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather which cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Multifid coconut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap and a few ounces is enough to last anyone in the family for months.—ADV.

Even with this precaution the plane yawed and nearly rolled over on the right wing.

Thus we finished a voyage of more than 1200 nautical miles and a water run of more than 205 nautical miles.

The harbor was a perfect bedlam with whistles blowing on all the steamers, crews wildly cheering and the shores lined with cheering crowds. Ships' boats and shore boats were chasing madly about the harbor trying to render assistance or to see us and greet us and get our pictures.

It was a wonderful sight. The sun was still high, the ships were dressed with flags and the colors stood out brilliantly as the flags whipped in the breeze. The scene was one never to be forgotten and with our relief from the long tension, our feelings cannot be described.

Safe Looted of $400
Two Men Who Bind Chef in Table Cloth Also Rob Cigar Stand in Place.

Apostha Ben, 1236 Pine street, night chef at the Acme Restaurant, 205 North Broadway, was wrapped in a jumbled cloth and bound, hands and feet, by two robbers who looted the safe in the Broadway Cafe, 205 North Broadway, at 1:30 o'clock this morning.

The robbers had entered the cafe through a rear window and, evidently knowing that the place was connected with the restaurant, decided to arrange matters so that the chef could not interfere with their work.

They covered him with a revolver and made him accompany them to the office of the cafe. While he was lying on the floor they "jimmied" the safe and took $400 belonging to Harry Bentz, the proprietor. They also took between $50 and $75 from a cash drawer in a cigar stand in the front part of the cafe.

After the robbers had departed Bentz tied himself and, getting a revolver from the restaurant, fired several shots in the air to attract police. The robbers left their "jimmied" sledge hammer and a carpenter's punch in the cafe.

Three men, two of them armed, stopped John Baker, 2104 Chippewa street, near Lemay avenue and Arsenal street, at 9 o'clock last night and took a purse containing $5 and his union card. He told them he didn't mind the loss of the money and asked them to leave him the card. They took it from the case and gave it back to him.

James Roberts, Lancaster, Mo., accepted the services of a stranger who offered to guide him to a rooming house from Union Station at 8 p. m. yesterday. When near Twenty-first and Adams streets the man knocked him down and robbed him of $18 and his suit case.

Frank Miller, 222 South Second street, was held up by two armed men near Levee and Walnut street and robbed of $75 at 9 p. m.

Two men ransacking the home of R. M. Saylor, 3700 West Pine boulevard, were interrupted at 8:30 p. m. by the return of the family. They ran out a rear door, dropping a suit case they had filled with jewelry, silverware and clothing.

At the home of Mrs. Anna Brown, 1129 North Nineteenth street, burglars took $56 cash belonging to the Jewish Benevolent Society and a $40 necklace. The money was from the sale of tickets.

Other burglaries reported were at the home of Mrs. George Klauberg, 3876 Garfield avenue, $17.50 cash and $12.75 in jewelry; the home of Mrs. Helen Lahmann, 1306 North Market street, $100 in clothing and trinkets.

6 POLICEMEN HURT WHEN AUTO HITS POLE AND TURNS OVER

Steering Gear of Patrol Jams, Causing Accident at Theresa Avenue and Locust Street.

Sgt. Steve Collins, acting Lieutenant at the Laclede Avenue Police Station, and five policemen were injured at 10:30 o'clock last night when the steering gear of a patrol automobile in which they were answering a burglary call jammed, driving the auto into a pole at Theresa avenue and Locust street. The machine turned over.

Sgt. Collins was thrown through the windshield, and was cut on the head and face. Patrolman John Obermoeller, 5039 S. St. Louis avenue, suffered a fractured wrist and scalp wounds. Patrolmen Murray, Jones, Giffith and Nahn were cut and bruised. The chauffeur, Robert Cahill, was uninjured.

The call for the police said a burglar was ransacking the Union M. E. Church, 3626 Delmar boulevard. When the police arrived, however, they learned the robbery was at the Y. W. C. A. branch home, 3638 Delmar boulevard. A burglar had been caught in one of the rooms, but escaped before the police arrived. Police were told $150 in jewelry had been stolen from a girl rooming at the place.

DRY GOODS MEN STAY OVER A DAY TO SEE ST. LOUIS

Retailers Visit Shopping Cen-

Tonight.

BANKER PREDICTS
PROSPERITY FOR U. S.

Resolution Urges Congress to Enact Legislation to Compel Foreigners in U. S. to

Members of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, following the final business session of its convention yesterday afternoon and a banquet at the Hotel Statler last night, designated today as "red letter day"
and spent the time visiting the city's shopping centers and other points of interest. Tonight they will be the guests of the wholesalers and manufacturers of St. Louis at Forest Park Highlands.

The banquet was given by the Associated Retailers of St. Louis and was attended by about 400 persons.
Festus J. Wade, president of the Merchandise Trust Co., and the Rev.
Z. B. T. Phillips, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, were the principal speakers at the dinner. In introducing Wade, Toastmaster M. L. Wilkinson referred to him as "a man who knows the dry goods business, the manufacturing business, the street railway business, the banking business, who has met every angle of life from boyhood to manhood as fair and honest as any man who ever lived."

Before taking up his subject, "The Banker and the Retailer," Wade related a humorous incident in his career.

"Oldest Dry Goods Merchant."
"Those of you who have known
me as a banker, a real estate agent,
a street car driver, sprinkling wagon driver and driver of sundry other occupations," he said, "never realized that I was an important factor in the dry goods business before Fa-amounted to anything. I am the ing was that I was to speak as a retailer, and not as a banker talking to retailers.

"In 1871 there was a firm organized in St. Louis, and I challenge any man, even Bill Steigers, who has been taking all your money for advertising for more than 40 years, to remember, if he can, where Crawford, Russell & Freeze had an emporium in this city. (NOTE—The Bill Steigers, of whom Wade made reference, is William C. Steigers, business manager of the Post-Dispatch.)

"Crawford, Russell and Freeze
had an establishment 25-foot front, 60 feet deep, 28 clerks and 12 cash boys. Well, it is unnecessary to say who was the manager of that institution at that time. Money prevents me from mentioning the position that I held. D. Crawford and Company was at Fifth and Franklin, three blocks below, and when we got those good purchases in our emporium and our stock of goods did not have just the particular kind of stockings or whatever else they wanted we would yell 'cash' and 'cash' would run up and he would be given an order to 'go to the warehouse.' He was trained and knew that the order meant that he was to slip out the back way, run through the alley to D. Crawford and Company and get the order filled. In the meantime we sold the customer something else."

"But they were just as well satisfied and we sold that stock out four or five times in the sales we had. I found, with the consent of the employer, that when the sale was over they did not require first class talent and therefore I graduated into another occupation."

Period of Prosperity Ahead.
Wade said that the United States was entering a period of prosperity unparalleled by any nation of the world. Nothing can happen in this country today, he said, except prosperity, providing that the merchant, manufacturer, agriculturist and banker realize, as they all do, that there is only one country free and independent of the whole world.

He said merchants, retailers or wholesalers, manufacturers, large or small, could come to St. Louis and get credit from the banks if they were clean in character, solvent and sensible.

Selling and Buying Credits.
Bankers of today do not know the word "accommodate" in the old banking sense, he said. They are simply merchants selling and buying credits, taking deposits and lending money for the purpose of making money.

Dr. Phillips spoke about character and its bearing upon business. He said that one of the great sins of the American people in the past had been
that they had, in their superficiality, lost their pride. They have been too much in a hurry, he said, and the word "haste" had substituted itself in so many angles of life for sincerity of purpose and accuracy. Successful business men must be dreamers, he said. History is made the moment a man breaks with the traditions of the past, because mediocrity goes along with that line or habit which was followed for centuries.

Resolutions Adopted.
Resolutions urging Congress to enact legislation compelling foreigners residing in America to become naturalized citizens, indorsing immediate completion of Mississippi and Missouri river projects and the prevention of misrepresentation in sales of ready-to-wear garments were adopted at yesterday afternoon's session.

In connection with the resolution calling for the naturalization of resident foreigners, every employer was urged to give careful and consensuous consideration to the affairs of his organization that no false or misleading doctrine be promulgated by "ill-informed or self-deluded commentators."

"It seems to us," the resolution concluded, "absolutely necessary, and we recommend that prompt and vigorous action be taken to rid this country of alien disturbing elements, and, if our present laws are inadequate to accomplish this effectively, such legislation as is necessary for this purpose be enacted."

River Projects Indorsed.
The resolution urging completion of river projects was as follows:

"Whereas, transportation has become the most vital need of the inhabitants of the Mississippi Valley, we earnestly request of Congress the immediate completion of the Mississippi and Missouri River projects approved by Congress in 1910, which were to have been completed within 10 years and upon which a small proportion of the work has thus far been accomplished. We also urge upon Congress to enact the necessary legislation that will prevent the railroads from continuing their unfair competition of the past and compel them to establish a complete co-ordination and co-operation between the transportation lines and the railroads with joint rates and through bills of lading between the water and rail carriers, such as now exist between the different railway lines, so that the railways and waterways be made to work together for the country's good. We also urge upon the United States Shipping Board the necessity of furnishing the necessary ships for operating to and from the port of New Orleans, so that the flow of traffic from the Gulf to the Lakes may be promptly and economically transported."

In reference to misrepresentation of sizes the following resolution was adopted:

"Whereas, there are and have been many complaints relative to the misrepresentation of sizes in ready-to-wear garment, the National Retail Dry Goods Association, in general session assembled, suggests that certain specific cases where such misrepresentation of sizes has been practiced. And we further recommend to our Board of Directors that they turn over such evidence to the attention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, for action."

The Association went on record as being strongly opposed to the repeal of the daylight saving law.

A shower given by the girls at the

Nothing Like Plain Bito-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and
curved lines of health
and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness is usually due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phos-
phate than is contained in modern foods.

Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as Bito-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by Judice & Dolph, Cottler Drug Stores, Johnson Bros.
Drug Co., Wolf-Wilson Drug Co., in St.
Louis, and drugists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back.
By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, Bito-phosphate quickly produces a welcome transformation—a magic transformation increase in weight frequently being accompanied.

This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, soon disappear, dull eyes become bright, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health. Miss Georgia Hamilton, who was once thin and frail, reporting her own experience, writes: "Bito-Phosphate has brought about a magic transformation in me. I gained 15 pounds and never before felt so well."

CAUTION.—Although Bito-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not be relied on for remarkable flesh-growing properties, be used by anyone who desires to put on flesh.

ROBINSON REPLIES TO REED'S LEAGUE SPEECH IN SENATE

Challenges Missouri Senator to Put Views to Test by Resigning and Seeking Re-Election.

NO RACE QUESTION, ARKANSAS DECLARES

Covenant Does Not Create a Super-Government, He Says, but "Becomes Our Agent, Not Our Master."

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Supporting the league of nations as a practical step toward the prevention of war, Senator Robinson, Democrat, of Arkansas, replied in the Senate yesterday to many of the objections that have been brought forward by Senators against the proposal.

Far from creating a supergovernment, the speaker declared, the league would be "our agent, not our master." It would not be inconsistent with American traditions, he asserted, and could not involve the United States against its will in foreign quarrels.

He denied the validity of constitutional points raised by Senators Sherman of Illinois, Knox of Pennsylvania and others on the Republican side, and replied at length to the contention of Senator Reed, Democrat, of Missouri, that the league would endanger the destinies of the white race.

There were few interruptions during the two-hour speech, and the changes which did occur lacked much of the bitterness which heretofore has characterized the debate. At adjournment the resolution which brought the subject before the Senate, proposed by Senator Johnson, Republican, of California, to ask the State Department for the complete treaty text—remained the unfinished business, to come up again today.

Follows Lines of Treaties. Senator Robinson took up in detail the constitutional objections to the league covenant, quoting precedents to show that the covenant provisions in many particulars follow the same legal lines as treaties now in force. In replying to Senator Reed's argument that the league would give a majority voice in world affairs to the black, brown, and yellow races, the Arkansas Senator declared Reed had been blinded by prejudice.

"There is no race question involved," continued Robinson. "Would the Senator favor a league composed of white nations alone and thus force creation of a league of nations composed of other races? The Senator's contention is totally unimportant when viewed in connection with the fact that citizens of the league must be unanimous."

Senator Reed, the speaker charged, had "sought to intimidate Senators from the South by injecting the race question" into the league debate and had "led the Southern supporters of the league to justify themselves before their constituents."

A Challenge to Reed. "I accept the challenge," said Senator Robinson. "The day the Senator leaves Washington to go to Missouri to justify himself before his constituents for his opposition to every effort for a league of nations, on that day I go to Arkansas to give support to this league, and if I don't get back before he does, I'll never come back."

"If the people of Arkansas don't vote for the league two to one or more, I'll never go back," said Robinson. "I am in no position to judge the Arkansas Senator's constituency, but was satisfied that so far as Missouri was concerned, it was a vote in any way, the league of nations would be overwhelmingly defeated." The challenge by Robinson, he declared, was made "for effect."

Criticism of Robinson. The Arkansas Senator, also criticized utterances of Senator Poindexter, Republican, of Washington, charging that the latter had "struck President Wilson behind." To this Senator Robinson replied briefly, stating that he only stated an honest objection to some of the President's declarations. The alliance plan for a world court, presented in the Senate in March by Senator Knox, Robinson said would create a "super-government" to which nothing proposed in the Paris covenant could compare. He quoted the Pennsylvania Senator as recommending that "all disputes relating to international matters as defined by an international code should be decided by an international court authorized to call upon signatory Powers to enforce its decrees."

"He would compel every nation," continued Robinson, "to submit every dispute of an international character to a league tribunal and in that way deprive the respective nations of all sovereignty and control over their foreign relations."

BRITONS SILENT AS HAWKER IN SPEECH DEPRECATES U. S. PRECAUTIONS ON FLIGHT

"When There Is a Ship Every 50 Miles There Is No Fight in Your Motor," Declares Australian Aviator.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 29.—Speaking at a luncheon given by the Daily Mail yesterday for his honor, Harry G. Hawker deprecates the organization which had won for the United States the honor of the first crossing of the Atlantic by a heavier-than-air machine. He declared it was not a serious attempt, with a ship stationed at "every 20 yards."

Hawker continued: "If you put a ship every 50 miles, it shows you have no fight in your motor." This was greeted with absolute silence on the part of the men gathered at the luncheon, numbering between 250 and 300, nearly all of whom were British. A few minutes before they had cheered heartily the statement that the American aviators had been successful in reaching Europe.

General Seely had just referred to the lack of jealousy regarding the American attempt and its splendid success. Apparently somebody pulled Hawker's coat tails for he suddenly said: "I don't think I will say any more about that now."

Planned Azores Flight. Hawker disclosed that on Saturday night, immediately preceding his start, he and Raynham had agreed that unless the wind changed they would start on Sunday for a flight by way of the Azores and Portugal. The wind veered slightly Saturday night, enough to give Hawker and Raynham the chance to start from their airbase; but it was unfavorable for Raynham.

He declared that although the weather was unfavorable, the success of Americans in reaching the Azores forced him to start. "Any Englishman here," he added, "would have done the same thing under the same circumstances." Lieutenant-Commander Grieve said he was very nervous over his navigation of the ship, but that the navigation of an airplane was the same as of a ship. There were no difficulties until the clouds precluded the taking of sightings. He predicted that the navigating of airplanes would be a simple matter in the future.

The Daily Mail's £25,000 consolation prize was presented to the two aviators. Lord Northcliffe, who is ill, sent a message to be read at the luncheon, which read: "Were I present I would like to raise my glass in congratulation of our American friends on their careful and characteristic preparations and for their fine, record-breaking flight to the Azores and Lisbon. They have still left to us the problem of a direct flight from America to Europe."

After their reception by King George at Buckingham Palace yesterday, Hawker and Grieve saw Queen Mary and the Prince of Wales. The car of the aviators was besieged by the crowd as it left the palace, and it was with difficulty it proceeded.

Raynham Invites Grieve to Be His Navigator on Flight. ST. JOHNS, N. F., May 29.—Lieutenant-Commander Mackenzie Grieve has been invited by Frederick P. Raynham, British aviator, to try it again, this time as navigator of the Martinsyde plane to be piloted by Hawker's rival.

Capt. Charles W. Morgan, originally selected as Raynham's navigator, was so seriously injured when the Martinsyde plunged its nose into the turf while attempting to "hop off" with Hawker's Sopwith that physicians forbade him to think further of flying. In announcing that he had disabled Grieve, inviting him to replace Morgan, Raynham said he hoped the commander would be able to accept, but that in any event he was certain of the services of a navigator as another aviator equally qualified was "under consideration." The number of British expeditions with representatives here preparing for a transatlantic flight was increased to five with arrival of Lieut. W. P. Williams. R. A. F. Lieut. Williams came here to select an airbase for an Alliance machine, a two-seated biplane with a single Napier engine of 450-horsepower.

DIVORCE DECREE IS SET ASIDE

Judge Kimmel in Circuit Court yesterday set aside the divorce he granted Chester J. Watts, a railway clerk of 6048 Westminster place, from Mrs. Edna Watts, on April 21. The divorce had been granted by default, Mrs. Watts not appearing in court, and was set aside on a motion filed by her attorneys.

Mrs. Watts says she was asked to sign an entry of appearance, not knowing she would receive no further notice, and that she did not know she had been divorced until last Monday. She says she had signed a different paper than that produced in court, and that the petition she saw did not state she had deserted her husband on Dec. 20, last, as charged in court, and which she says in untrue. Mrs. Watts says they were separated March 31. She said she had grounds on which she might be able to obtain a divorce from her husband, and Judge Kimmel will rehear the case.

OIL MAN IS CHARGED WITH $2400 SHORTAGE

Bernard Fiedeler's Adventures in Matrimony and Auto Buying Lead to His Arrest.

A dull season in the oil stock selling game, which Bernard Fiedeler says prevented him from paying back $2400 to which he had helped himself from the company treasury, didn't keep him from getting married, setting up an apartment at 5777 Westminster place, and successfully buying two automobiles. He told the police about it today, at the holdover, where he was a prisoner until he obtained bond.

The charge against Fiedeler, who is 26 years old, is that when he was junior member of the Danann-Fiedeler Grain Co., with offices in the Pierce Building, last year, he used $2900 of company money, to which he had no right. The matter was discovered, reported to the authorities, and Fiedeler promised Circuit Attorney McDaniel that he would pay it all back if they would not have him arrested. He did pay back $500 and the company was dissolved in January.

And No Payments Came. Time went on, and no payments came from Fiedeler. Then he got married, about the first of March, and set up housekeeping in an apartment, and still no payments. Soon he bought a Maxwell automobile from the Weber Implement Co., on time payments, giving a mortgage on the car to secure the balance of $217.

The Maxwell didn't suit Fiedeler and his bride, so they traded it in on a Buick, without appraising the Weber people of the transaction. McDaniel was still waiting to hear from Fiedeler. The Buick concern was not patient. When Fiedeler failed to show up with their balance on schedule time, they took back the machine and kept the Maxwell besides.

Detectives Get a Surprise. Then the whole works collapsed. The Weber people demanded their money or their car, and failing to get either, demanded Fiedeler's arrest on the charge of disposing of mortgaged property. Circuit Attorney McDaniel decided that patience had ceased to be a virtue, and called on Fiedeler to pay or be locked up.

Two detectives went after him. When they arrived at the apartment last night, they were surprised to discover that the wife of the former Mrs. Clara Cleary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pellinski, 4151 Kossuth avenue, whom they had arrested, May 2, together with her parents, on a charge of defrauding Weert Bauer, 76 years old, retired farmer of Alton, out of $14,000, on the pretext of aiding him in finding a pot of gold which he was told was buried on his farm.

Are Awaiting Trial. Mrs. Fiedeler and the Pellinskis are now waiting to be tried at Alton on the charge of defrauding Bauer.

Mrs. Fiedeler explained that she was remarried three months ago to Fiedeler, her first husband being divorced, and that she had retained the furniture which she had during her previous marriage. Her parents also helped fit out the new home, she said. She thought her husband would be home later in the evening. He was, and the detectives, waiting across the hall, took him into custody when he arrived.

"It's all true," Fiedeler said, "but it's a shame to arrest me now. If they will just give me a little more time, I'll pay it all back. I have been selling oil stock, and the business has been mighty dull, but give me a little time, and I will make it all back."

Circuit Attorney McDaniel declined to wait any longer, and Fiedeler was locked up on a charge of withholding the $2400, and selling mortgaged property. He spent the night in the holdover, but gave bond this morning, and was released.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

The Boys and the Lost Golf Ball.

The shooting of a boy by a park guard in Forest Park brings to a head a long-standing trouble.

Boys of the neighborhood are in the habit of searching for and reselling lost golf balls. Several years ago, I am informed, some boys were arrested for so doing. The Court released them. Since then the park guards have made no arrests. Whenever neighborhood boys are seen walking near the golf links, however innocently, the guards chase them. When a boy is caught (as the boys say) they beat him.

The fact is, of course, that the boys have a right to be in any part of the park, every inch of which is public property. They also have a right to claim any lost property they may find, the worth of which would not defray the cost of advertising.

Reprinted balls are for sale at the clubhouse in Forest Park and in stores. Every golfer who buys a reprinted ball does so knowing that the ball has been found and offered for sale by someone other than the original owner. He agrees, then, by his act of purchase, to the principle that the ball belongs to the finder.

Whether the conduct of the guards has made the boys outlaws or whether they have failed of moral guidance, it is true that occasionally a boy steals a ball actually in play. This is exasperating. But for my part, I find it no more exasperating than losing a ball in any other manner, an occurrence frequent enough. It is merely a question whether we shall lose balls or boys.

The park guard, though his act is unlawful, stands in the eyes of these boys, for the whole body of the law of the State. If the guard is unfair, it is unfair to them the law is unfair. In persecuting, rather than trying to understand the boys, we are making them enemies of society. Sunday's incident will not be easily forgotten.

Will not other golfers who really understand the boys join their voices to mine? No doubt it was because our wishes were misunderstood that these wrongs have been done to our future citizens.

Small Wages and High Prices.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

What are we going to do about this high cost of living? Surely something must be done. I am a young married man with no children and find it hard to make ends meet. Now my husband is making $20 a week and with prices soaring every day I just can't get along. Everything in the grocery is doubling, some things triple, and raised clothing higher, how is the man who is making as much as my husband (and I have many friends who are) with babies to support, going to give them what they need in order to bring them up to be healthy young men and women?

Give the working man a chance. Everybody get together. Prices must go down or wages up.

YOUNG HOUSEWIFE.

Who Will Defend the People's Rights?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I read W. W. R.'s letter in your issue of May 23, saying prohibition is not the cause of Socialism. I agree with him and believe that Socialism is the logical result of the way our Government is being run at present. The trusts are allowed to dictate to the Government and to boost prices of necessities way above all reason or justification. Food profiteers are allowed free rein to bleed the public shamefully. Socialism, I believe, is also the outcome of resentment on the part of the common people against the steadily increasing trend of legislators to enact laws depriving the people of the rights and personal liberty guaranteed (?) them by the Constitution of the United States. Is our Constitution a scrap of paper only, that can be repudiated at the will of our legislators and without giving the people a chance to voice their sentiments?

To me the final outcome of the whole matter will be the formation of a new political party styling themselves the Constitutionalists.

Oh, for a Roosevelt to be the modern Moses and lead us out of the wilderness! Is there not another man in the country of this type?

R. W. BORCHERT.

Old Age Pensions.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

If it is a good idea to pension the preachers (giving them $500 a year severally) why not pass it along to the laborers who are supplanting them?

SIDNEY AVERILL, Columbia, Mo.

Give St. Louis Singers a Chance.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I notice in the paper about the Municipal Opera Company securing singers for the coming season. It seems very strange with so many good voices here in our home town to go to New York and other cities to get their talent. I think it is about time St. Louis people were waking up and insisting on giving the singers of their city a chance. I have heard many here that are capable and think they can hold their own.

A CITIZEN.

THE LAMAR LYNCHING.

The lynching at Lamar, this State, of Jay Lynch, confessed murderer of Sheriff Harlow and his son, Richard, lacked two of the usual bad features of lynchings. There was no doubt about the person's guilt; he had confessed it in court and was under sentence. There was no mob disorder or unnecessary brutality. That is all that can be said for the lawbreakers of Lamar.

Neither of these conditions in the slightest degree justifies the lynching of the criminal. That in itself was an act of criminal lawlessness, subversive of all law and order. There was no excuse of a delay or defeat of justice. The courts had dealt promptly with the criminal and he was sentenced to the full penalty for his crime under the law.

In its effect on organized society and the State the crime of the mob was worse than the crime of the lynched murderer. It was an attack on all law and order, an attempt to subvert them and to substitute personal vengeance for justice under legal process, and mobs for courts.

The men guilty of the crime should be indicted and punished. This is necessary as a vindication of law and order.

A SEA STORY OF THRILL AND VALUE.

It is a long time since fact or fiction has given us such a sea story as the one Commander John H. Towers of the NC-3 told in the Post-Dispatch.

Compelled to descend at 1 p. m. on May 17 in the flight to the Azores, the commander and his crew fought the fury of the sea in one of the frailest and lightest of craft for 53 hours, during 16 of which the storm reached a high pitch. Practically sleepless from the time they left Newfoundland on May 16, living on scraps of food, they toiled unceasingly to man the pumps, keep the craft balanced and operate the machinery. First one pontoon and then the other was carried away. The impact of tons of sea water broke the fragile wings, but, turning right side up the flag previously reversed as a signal of distress, floating on a few feathers of their flying boat, they sailed triumphantly into the breakwater at Ponta Delgada, just before sunset on May 19, having traversed 205 miles on the surface of the stormy ocean and having actually outstripped the NC-4's successful crew, who had landed 150 miles to the rearward at Fayal.

Are not these men, who returned in life, like Hawker and Grievé, after they had been given up for dead, entitled to a large part of the acclaim? Is it not possible that they have performed a service as important, if not more so, in one direction as the NC-4's crew performed in another.

Lieutenant-Commander Read's men showed that, with things working well with them, a crossing can be made from one continent to the other. However, we had previously little doubt about that. But with luck against them, the men of the NC-3 showed how to combat adverse things and make a splendid finish. More things are to be learned from the Towers than from the Read flight. Pontoons must be more substantial. Sea anchors that will anchor must be provided. Future hydroplane construction may owe much to the experience of the NC-3 and its intrepid and skillful men.

The failure to include prohibition among the terms is easily explained. The Entente statesmen, manifestly, are hirelings of the Demon Rum.

SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' CLUB RECORD.

Since its opening in Christmas week, 1917, a period of 17 months, the Soldiers' and Sailors' Club, in the Post-Dispatch Building, has been one of the most successful of the institutions maintained by St. Louis for the benefit of our fighters. Having completed its mission, the club is now closed, but its work will live in the memories of the 200,000 soldiers, sailors and marines who have been entertained there.

The Post-Dispatch having offered the rooms rent free, with light, heat and bathing equipment, the women of St. Louis and the public generally did everything else that was needed to make the club a center of comfort and entertainment for the soldiers. The women formed an organization, with a governing board, selected hostesses, arranged for receptions and dances, and were always on hand with motherly and sisterly aid to welcome the fighter and make him feel at home. Hearty thanks are due these women, and also to the citizens who contributed the furniture, musical instruments, games and other equipment that made the club attractive. Among the thousands of soldiers who had the opportunity to compare this club with those across the water, it was agreed that the only establishment that equaled it was the celebrated Eagle Hut in London.

Clubs like this helped to win the war. But they did more; they not only helped to keep our fighters happy and fit, but safe from those evil influences which assail young men far from home, in a time of crisis and nervous strain. They were bright spots in the gloom of the world conflict.

Whatever else may be said about the U. R., nobody can honestly accuse it of practicing any cheese-paring economy at the top.

A REACTIONARY'S HARANGUE

Senator Reed's speech against the League of Nations on the floor of the Federal Senate is intellectually of the caliber that might be expected from a mob leader trying to incite his followers to violence. In the latter case we should look for appeals to race prejudice, but such argumentative destitution is a sad spectacle to behold in the "greatest deliberative body on earth."

Before the Senators from the South Reed flouted the specter of negro equality, while the Senators from the Pacific coast were admonished against the Jap and Chinaman. And, with broad gesture, the white people of all lands were warned that the League of Nations would eventuate in a colored coalition and colored domination.

Thoughtful people are wholly agreed that race prejudice is one of the basest emotions—one of the most wretched survivals of darkness and ignorance. Its eradication is an objective for which progress strives and to which light and attainment point the way. To race prejudice may be charged most of the hatreds and cruelties and tyrannies that have made time a treadmill instead of a path. The degree of human happiness and capacity everywhere is in proportion to the relative absence of this venomous passion. The League of Nations is an aspiration to the practical brotherhood of man, from which domination of any tint shall be excluded; an age of reason when all peoples shall be free to work out their own destiny under no foreign yoke.

It is an ideal, manifestly, beyond the perceptions of Missouri's demagogic Senator.

DEALING WITH BOLSHIEVISM.

From the Chicago Daily News.

BOLSHIEVISM has two different parts and Congress ought to discriminate between them in its proposed legislation against Bolshevist propaganda.

The first part of Bolshevism is an economic program which it would be ridiculous and inconsistent for us to try to prevent or suppress. Bolshevism claims, for instance, that private property in land should be abolished. But for years the single-taxers have been allowed to claim that private profit in the case of the farmer is unjust. Both claims are equally absurd. The second part of Bolshevism is the doctrine that private property should be abolished through taxation. When you destroy private property you virtually destroy private property. You destroy its essence. The single-taxers have talked among us for years and it has been their right to talk, and we have seen no violent change and no armed upset coming from it.

We must beware of being stampeded by the Bolshevists into doing an indignity to the freedom and the intelligence of the American people. The Bolshevists want to say that all private property in all industry, urban and agricultural, should be abolished. Well, have we come to the point at which we are willing to admit that if a propagandist asks the American people to commit economic suicide the American people forthwith will oblige him?

This is not a nation of idiots. It can listen to bad advice and arrive at good decisions. It listened to a great deal of bad advice, extremely eloquently presented and free silver. It chose gold. It listened to a great deal of bad advice, presented by men of the highest ability, in favor of "letting the South go" in the 60's. It held the South. This country is a country sound in its wits. It keeps them sound through exercise. The only way to impair the good judgment of the American people is to do to the American people what the Czar did to the Russians—prevent them from hearing and weighing arguments and thus exercising and developing their political intelligence.

The other part of Bolshevism is not arguments. It is threats. That is the part that cannot be tolerated. A certain radical editor put at the head of his magazine a short time ago the words: "For a revolution, by peaceful means if possible." What did he mean? He meant that if he and his fellow radicals failed to capture the Government at the polls and were left in a minority they would, nevertheless, attack the majority and capture the Government by shooting the majority into submission.

He and all men like him should be effectively warned that the United States is not Russia, is not Germany. The United States has had self-government for a long time and it has had a great deal of political experience in dealing with minorities. Violent minorities in America do not win.

Our present very unreal Americans who think they can put a Russian scheme of minority dictatorship on the necks of the people of the United States will have a similar tale to tell from their graves.

SOCRATES AND HIS PUPILS.

SOCRATES: I don't suppose you young men are interested in what Reedius said the other day as indicating in any way what one should think of the league of nations?

Glaucou: No, Socrates.

SOCRATES: However, you may be interested in it as a pathological phenomenon?

Glaucou: That is possible.

SOCRATES: That is, while it has no political interest, it might prove interesting pathologically.

Glaucou: It might.

SOCRATES: Very well. We all know, as pathologists tell us, that some people are abnormal emotionally. That is, whenever they express an emotion, thought, feeling or idea they are very likely to do it heatedly or violently?

Thrasymachus: We all know people of that sort.

SOCRATES: Certainly. Reedius is exactly such a person. He has abnormal emotions, and he expresses them in a manner amazing to normal people. He labors to make them see as he sees; but they cannot do that, since they cannot feel as he feels.

Thrasymachus: It is not pathologically possible.

SOCRATES: No. If one has emotions of that kind they carry with them whatever such a person perceives to be right or wrong, just or unjust, good or bad. That is, being themselves superlative, they render superlative whatever they touch.

Polemarchus: Reedius to the life.

SOCRATES: Quite so. Of no interest politically, this man is pathologically one of the most interesting people in public life. Superlative in temperament, he expresses himself superlatively upon every subject to which he turns. He exaggerates not because he wants to be ridiculous, but because he is himself exaggerated. Thus Reedius, in stating what he conceives to be the truth, can no more stop at the truth than a gun elevated to shoot ten miles can hit an object at five.

Thrasymachus: You have him there.

SOCRATES: Possibly none of us is quite sure what the consequence of such a league would be; but Reedius is sure. His own faith in his ability to foresee what it would be is exaggerated.

Congress should discriminate, but it should also extirpate. It should leave every man free to advocate any peaceful reorganization of industry that may seem good to him. It should take every man who commits acts, or who threatens ated. Boiling over, he cannot confine that phenomenon to his mood merely. His judgment, discretion, vision and taste all boil over as well.

Polemarchus: I should think pathologists would be crazy about him.

SOCRATES: So they would, if they too, were abnormal. However, being for the most part only normal people, they probably see in him nothing more than the proof of well-known pathological truths.

Glaucou: That is the fine thing about you, Socrates. You are a normal person. You debate without emotion, and therefore see things in their true proportions. Reedius, I dare say, will never start a school of philosophy.

SOCRATES: No; but pathology is a good science. He may do something for that.

Thrasymachus: Let us hope so. He can't be as bad as other people sometimes seem to him.

SOCRATES: Well said, Thrasymachus. Now let us buy a paper and see if the Democrats have sailed from Lisbon.

Mr. Wilson is glad his presidency is behind him; but his joy is not a patch on the first time they have been out of the White House eight years hand-running since the party was founded.

Now let the Republicans fly across something.

The claim that almost any small business nowadays is a gamble seems to be substantiated by this sign at Kimmewick, Mo.:

General Merchandise

When Johnnie Smith, his part had played, And his uniform staidly aside had laid— Then a neighbor took notice and worried his head.

And called on him early one evening and said:

"Now that the Germans are beaten and through."

Tell me, please, what are you going to do?" And Johnnie Smith, looking both worried and blue, Said: "Honest, I'm puzzled the same as are you."

"Before, with the girls I was counted a hero; But they fight for me now when I'm becoming a hero."

They're calling me up, and then calling me down. When I ought to be earning a living in town.

"They never consider my future at all— But I present from France for a beautiful doll."

Just answer me, please, sure, I'd say if I knew: Oh! what am I, what am I going to do?"

U. S. and British Decision Against Big Navy Building Race Result of the League

Correspondent Discusses Attitude on Covenant in Washington, and the Republican Factional Issue on Taxation.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—This was a day of "I told you so" in the national Capitol. Those who never believed there would be a serious fight by the Progressive Republicans against the selection of Senator Penrose for the chairmanship of the Finance Committee claimed vindication.

Those who never believed Secretary Daniels would have a "second to none," or a navy that would rival Great Britain in quantity of warships, pointed to his statement before the House Naval Affairs Committee, withdrawing his recommendation of last autumn, as proof that the administration never meant it in the first place.

Lastly, those who have been insisting that President Wilson would not run for a third term flourished marked copies of his speech in Paris in congratulating Dr. Pessoa, President-elect of Brazil, before their respective audiences in the cloak-rooms of Congress and elsewhere as confirmation of the impression previously conveyed that Mr. Wilson was not looking ahead to another term of office, but regarded his second term as the end of his official career.

Republicans Open Conference.

As for the open conference of the Republicans, wherein the Progressives were permitted to say sundry things with the reporters present about Penrose's taxation ideas, it was a splendidly staged affair with not superfluous word spoken and not an unnecessary threat made.

The Progressives want it clearly understood that they don't like Penrose because they themselves favor the reduction of the income taxes, or rather the revision of the tax law in such fashion that the burdens will be differently distributed than they are now.

Senator Borah demanded that the conference be open, and, while all ended harmoniously enough with only eight votes cast against Senator Penrose, and which were not cast when the actual organization voting took place on the floor or the Senate, the fight was rather significant one just the same.

None of the Progressive Republicans, including Senator Borah, would go so far as to throw the Senate into the hands of the Democrats so the election of Penrose was a foregone conclusion.

The Republicans completed organization of the Senate yesterday by electing chairmen and majorities of all important committees, including Senators Penrose and Warren as heads of the Finance and Appropriations Committees, respectively. The Progressives voted solidly against a Democratic motion designed to oust Penrose as chairman of the Finance Committee.

All Republican committee nominations were adopted on a straight party vote of 49 to 42. The Democrats, however, secured a roll call on a motion to strike out the designation of "chairman" in the Finance Committee after Penrose's name. The motion was tabled, 48 to 42, with Senator Borah of Idaho and all other Progressive Republicans voting for it.

Senator Thomas, Democrat, of Colorado, declared the results showed the Republican "old guard" once more in the saddle, while Republican Leader Lodge said the Democrats, in opposing the majority committee, had violated "courtesy and good manners."

But the ideas the Progressives have been talking about—these will be heard from again. Out West the granger movement is strong. Senator Borah himself had the indorsement of the Republican League in his campaign for re-election last fall. Many farmers both inside and outside that league have a notion that Penrose would revise the income taxes so that the wealthy manufacturers would have a easier time of it.

The grangers, however, think the wealthy ought to bear the chief burden and that industry should absorb increasingly large amounts of our national indebtedness by excess profits taxes.

What we are seeing today is that beginning of a revival of Senator La Follette's taxation proposals with the Progressives of the West lining up against the conservative Republicans from states where big industry is located.

Senator Borah hints at a cleavage in the party. He is always doing that, however, and the chances are the Republican party is not going to split wide open right away.

Though if the conservative Republicans make no concessions whatever on taxation measures—that is hardly likely—there may be political advantage in the affray to the Democrats whose ideas tend to coincide with those espoused by the Progressive Republicans.

Secretary Daniels didn't give all his reasons for a change of front with regard to the naval program, but the Democrats are not going to be in the position of asking the American people, on the one hand, to pay taxes for increased armament, and to try to assure them, on the other hand, that a league of nations safeguards the United States against war.

Big Navy Proposition.

The Secretary of the Navy knew all this, of course, when he first proposed a big navy at the time Mr. Wilson was at the fast Europe, but, if members of Congress had read over again the naval bill of 1913, they would have discovered that a provision therein specifically stated that the building of new ships must be suspended whenever there was an international agreement about naval armament.

Indeed, the covenant of the league of nations has not yet been ratified, and the provision in it relating to disarmament simply creates an international obligation to study the question, so the administration could stick to its recent program.

But the suspension of construction by Great Britain and other countries is the real factor in America's decision. The rivalry in armaments is being brought to an end by the agreements in the league of nations covenant. England feels that America will protect her against unprovoked attack on the seas just as the United States feels that she should not have the biggest navy in the world so long as all police power is pooled through the potentiality of the league of nations.

Incidentally, President Wilson's vetoed reference to retirement from office gave stimulus to those who have been hoping that the Republicans would not embrace the suggestion of making a party fight against the league of nations as Senator Borah and others are urging.

Opposed for Party Reasons.

Many Republicans who have been against the league, owing to the fear that Mr. Wilson might derive sufficient strength from it if unopposed, adopted, to enable him to run for office again, now will be able to judge the covenant on its merits.

As for making a partisan question of the league controversy, there is reason to believe the Republican leaders are not going to be stampeded into such action. Mr. Wilson, they know, made the biggest political mistake when he gave the impression of partisanship in the midst of war last autumn; just so may there be a reaction against those who may seek to treat in partisan fashion the proposals of a President for the safeguarding of the peace of the United States.

By withdrawing from the arena of presidential politics and appealing to the people as a disinterested public servant, Mr. Wilson, it is admitted by the Republicans, has taken an infinitely stronger position than if he tried to run for office on a league of nations platform.

The hints that have been coming from Paris and elsewhere about President Wilson's desire to retire from the White House were the end of his present term preages one thing above all others—that on his return to the United States he intends to get into the fight and answer some of the attacks made by Senator Borah and others concerning the purposes of the covenant and the meaning of the peace treaty.

He would give the people first-hand information about the Paris conference and its purpose and support a program for the league of nations which is subject to periodic revision by all nations and which is not the particular proposal of one nation but the reconciled views and harmonized ideas of all nations.

FEAR OF U. S. IN CHINA VOICED IN JAPANESE HOUSE OF PEERS

View Expressed Also That American Success in Siberia May "Destabilize Peace in Orient"

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

TOKIO, April 17.—Several political groups in the House of Peers have joined in the indictment of the Government's foreign policy especially toward China. As summarized in the Jiji, the Peers expressed the opinion that the race question is an important compared to the Chinese question, and that the real injury to Japan is caused by the disclosure of Chinese antagonism.

The Peers expressed the view that true friendship between Japan and China should be cultivated. China should be helped in the laying of a foundation for a stable administration. They voiced the fear that Japan is fast losing her position in China and that America is replacing Japan.

The Jiji summarized the Peers' view on the Russian question as follows: "What about our policy towards Siberia? America's plans are fast being carried out and as a result of America's success in Siberia it is possible that the peace of the Orient will be destroyed. But there is no one among the Government authorities here who can clearly answer the question what shall be done with Siberia."

As far as Korea is concerned the Peers said that the Government should establish a permanent policy of befriending the Koreans so as to give them ease of mind and contentment.

GOVERNMENT CALLS FOR LABOR

The Government has made another urgent call for 100,000 men for construction of a rifle range at Camp Knox, Ky. Secretary Hendricks, of the Old Custom House, states that the men so employed will be paid 40 cents an hour, with free sleeping quarters, and meals at 35 cents each.

He will furnish transportation to persons who apply at his office. The first shipment will be made next Monday evening, and continue on the following day.

He suggests that this work furnishes an opportunity to recently discharged soldiers and sailors.

DALLMEYER'S ATTITUDE ON GARDNER TAX PLAN

Jefferson City Member of Commission Considered an Opponent of Full Valuation.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, May 29.—Inquiry as to the attitude of the new members of the Tax Commission toward assessments shows that W. A. Dallmeyer has always been considered an opponent of the full valuation program.

The statement attributed to Dallmeyer in a St. Louis morning paper yesterday that he had not appeared before the Cole County Board of Equalization to protest an assessment of $8500 on the farm which he later sold to the State Prison Board for $37,000, is denied by J. H. Jones, former Assessor of the county, who says Dallmeyer did appear before the board and demand a reduction of the assessment.

Dallmeyer told the Post-Dispatch correspondent that he did not make a statement for publication.

Opposed Gardner Program.
Dallmeyer is a banker and a Republican politician. Three Republican county officials said they always had understood that Dallmeyer was opposed to the full value assessment program of Gov. Gardner, and Frank E. Jones, County Assessor, says Dallmeyer told him "If I were Assessor I would pay no attention to the Tax Commission, but would go ahead and assess property as it always has been done."

When told that people were saying he had always been opposed to full value assessments yesterday, Dallmeyer simply smiled.

When asked about the amount for which he sold the cattle on his farm, and while the reporter was discussing with him the assessment on the farm and his tax payments, he said: "I consider that my private business."

ness. Whatever acts I may do as a public official, that is the public's business, but the price I got for my farm, the amount of taxes I pay, and all that kind of things are my private affair."

Gardner's admission after the Dyer exposure that he didn't investigate the attitude of his appointees toward taxation matters is borne out by what can be learned of Dallmeyer's position on that question. Much comment has been caused here by the disclosure of Dyer's failure to pay taxes, and close friends of the Governor say he will be compelled to take some kind of action in the Dyer case, unless he is forestalled by the resignation of Dyer.

Looks Like a Big Storm Tonight

Other words, the stage is all for two capable fighters to meet a match where there is a strong incentive for both to give their best. When they battled before, unfortunately, this incentive was one-sided. For Regan there was the glory to be gained; but for the champion it was merely picking up $1500 for a night's work—part of the usual barn-storming tour so dear to the heart of the titleholder.

That the reverse he suffered he woke the champion to renewed exertions, his subsequent bouts show where Pete had been drifting along content to "get by," his contests late have resulted in victories, one knockout with John Ertle, one title claimant, on the receiving end. All of which spells trouble for the local "wonder" tonight.

In fact the prevailing belief among the cognoscenti—to wit, Leo Herman, at all in that feeling that Regan will be tormented and sunk about five rounds.

Pro and Con—Minaus the "Con." There are several reasons why the may happen among them the following:

Regan fights with his jaw widely exposed.

Herman can hit straight and true. The St. Louisian is very poor at guarding.

But there are other reasons why Herman may FAIL to stop his foe among which may be mentioned:

Regan has a lightning capacity for taking punishment.

His wonderful aggressiveness prevents his opponent from "cutting" for a blow.

The champion has knocked out but six foes in his entire career. Herman is not a knockout puncher. If the story of his previous fight as given in the guide book means anything, the only men at all worth while of the side he has "beaten" are Eddie Coulon and Ertle. On the other hand, he himself has been stopped—by Frankie Burns.

Both in Fine Shapes.

Herman, who has been working on here for several days, is in fine condition. Regan reports that he is in better fettle than when he last faced the champion. The match was weighed in early in the afternoon. The conditions being 125 pounds at 3 p.

Herman was favorite in the odds speculation indulged in, most Regan's supporters fearing that champion had not disclosed his strength, when last they fought.

At the Coliseum it was reported that the advance sale of tickets was about equal to that of the previous show, which drew $4500.

On that occasion a considerable loss, due to the activities of counterfeiters of tickets, was experienced. Under the new system counterfeiters will not be able to operate without immediate detection.

Herman will receive a guarantee of $5000 and expenses, with an option of 25 per cent. Regan is "gambling" taking 25 per cent of the receipts at time.

Herman has three fights scheduled for June, aggregating a total of $5000. For this reason he is willing to accept a $4800 offer from John Regan to box Earl Fox at Tulsa, 25 rounds, for the month of July 4. He wants $7500 a month at least.

Although tonight's feature event at the Coliseum boxing show will be an eight-round battle between Kid Herman and Kid Regan, signs are not wanting to indicate it will be far from a kidding match.

There are two reasons for this. One is that Bantam Champion Herman wears a little red gleam in his eye, like a small-mouth black bass. The fact is Pietro is angry because he self-appointed St. Louis news "refereree" decided that Kid Regan had outpointed him when the met here last April. That quintuplet blot on his record must be effaced, it is a disgrace to a champion.

The other reason is that Kid Regan, with his future ahead of him, will make his reputation and several thousand prospective iron men, provided he can repeat his success of few weeks ago.

JOHN REISLER TO RECEIVE $10,000 FROM WILLARD-DEMPSEY FIGHT

John Reiser, who holds a five-year contract calling for the services of heavyweight boxer Jack Dempsey, the document having been upheld in the New York Court of Appeals, told the Post-Dispatch today that Tex Rickard had promised him a settlement of $10,000 for Dempsey, if he would not interfere with the Willard-Dempsey contest at Toledo, July 4.

Reiser has several suits pending against Dempsey now, threatened to enjoin the coming fight if he would not accept the offer. "I'll wait a reasonable time to receive the money promised. If it is not forthcoming I will take legal action," he said.

Reiser predicted that the total sale at Toledo would not pass $300,000, although it has been reported the sum had already been exceeded. He picked Dempsey to win in five rounds.

Reiser is in St. Louis to sign Bantam Champion Kid Herman to a title bout at Tulsa, July 2, 20 rounds. Earl Purser to oppose him. Herman's manager has indicated a fee of $10,000 and $7500. An agreement may be reached this afternoon.

"I Feel Sorry for Dempsey," Declares Willard, Now on Way to Scene of Bout

Champion Takes No Stock in Stories of Giant-Killer's Remarkable Knockout Punch.

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 29.—JESS WILLARD has finished his training work here. Yesterday, with his sparring partners he departed for the scene of his world's championship battle with Jack Dempsey, there to indulge in one month of hard preparation.

Jess had a pretty fair dose of it here. Cloudy weather interfered frequently with the work of the motion picture company that was immortalizing the champion in several thousand feet of film, so that Jess had devoted more hours to his jousts with Charley Miller and Jack Hempel than had been expected.

His final hard workout was last Monday, when he went through 11 rounds with his sparring partners. He knocked Miller down twice in the first round and had to go lightly afterward or get along with Hempel as sole assistant. Jack looks as if he'd been through a campaign.

The big fellow is wearing me out," Hempel told me the afternoon of his final workout. "If he doesn't get a few more sparring partners so he can scatter his punches some I'm going to be listed among the casualties. He doesn't try to hurt me, but he can't help it. It's an awful job to stand against a fellow as big and strong as he is."

Willard Nearing Havana Form

ACCORDING to Hempel, Willard is quickly rounding into Havana form. He is growing faster and hitting harder every day, and trains as if he likes it. Hempel thinks that Jack Dempsey will be able to furnish Jess with a few rounds of light exercise.

"He'll last until he puts over a punch and makes Jess mad," is the way Hempel sizes up Dempsey's prospects. Manager, Roy Archer, has been instructed as to Toledo preparation. Jess wants a double-roped ring, well padded, and three or four sparring partners who can take a wallop. Jess took Hempel with him and hopes to have Walter Monaghan, who is still in the service, but may get his discharge in time to join the camp. Hempel and Monaghan have been going with outdoor training. For a week, but he is probably a few pounds lighter than 260, for his face is beginning to lose its roundness and take the weathered look that goes with outdoor training. For a week or more Willard boxed daily, indulged in exercises and hiked over the hills to aid his wind.

Jess Skeptical of Jack's Power

KID MCCOY had a talk with Willard, just before the latter departed. He wanted to join the Willard camp as chief adviser. Willard made no promise. McCoy advised Jess to lose his smile in this fight.

"I may smile," Jess told him, "but this is one fight I intend to win in a hurry. I haven't anything against Dempsey. In fact I'm sorry for him. They say he's a nice fellow. But I have an old score to settle with the people here and I won't feel any too gentle when I look over to his corner. I don't know much about Dempsey and don't care to know any more about him. I hope he's as good as they say he is. I don't take any pleasure in his club's club to win in a hurry. He's had more advertising than a circus, but that doesn't worry me. Everybody always warns me about something or other. They told me Johnson's uppercut would knock me head off, and he didn't land it once. They told me Frank Moran's Mary Ann would put me down if I wasn't careful, and Frank took so long to start it that I had time to look around and count the house while he was winding up."

"I intend to be in first-class condition, with plenty of speed and endurance, and I don't think I'll have any trouble winning. Of course every champion comes to defeat some time, but I don't feel that my time has come yet, by a long shot. If Dempsey can beat me I'll say he's a mighty good man, and I'll take my hat off to him. That's all."

Plestina Beats Palini.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 29.—Martin Plestina won from Tony Palini in straight falls in the wrestling match staged here last night. Plestina gained the first fall in 20m. and the second in 3m.

Paris, Wednesday, May 28.—The play in the first two days of the singles tennis tournament of the inter-allied games, under the auspices of the American army, on the courts of the racing club of France in Paris resulted in the elimination of all players but two Australians, two Americans, two French, one Canadian and one Czechoslovak. All the Rumanian and Serbian players were eliminated Tuesday.

Henry C. Beck of America and R. Lyett of Australia, had a straight contest Tuesday, which went to five sets. The Australian, who holds the English indoor doubles championship, and many Australian titles, lost the first two sets to the American, but came back strong in the third and fourth, lost the fifth set, 6-1. One of the biggest upsets of the tourney was the defeat Tuesday of Nicholas Mieu of Rumania (who defeated the French champions, Andre Gobert and Max Deugis, last winter) by J. Samabellia of France.

Dean Mathey of America was defeated by O'Hara Wood of Australia, while Watson M. Washburn beat Brugnon of France.

Tuesday's results were: Andre Gobert, France, beat Capt. Ermie Rumania, 6-2, 6-1. Karl Kosek, Czechoslovakia, beat Rosta Balanescu, Rumania, 6-1, 7-5, 6-4.

Watson Washburn, America, beat J. Brugnon, France, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4. Henry C. Beck, America, beat R. Lyett, Australia, 6-1, 6-3, 6-10, 6-8, 6-3.

G. I. Paterson, Scotland, beat Ladislav Zemla, Czechoslovakia, 1-6, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

O'Hara Wood, Australia, beat Dean Mathey, America, 6-3, 6-4, 6-1, 7-5, 6-4.

J. Samabellia, France, beat Nicholas Mieu, Rumania, 5-7, 6-4, 7-5, 1-6, 6-4.

Reginald Mayes, Canada, beat Boris Popovitch, Serbia, 6-0, 6-0, 6-0.

CHICAGO, May 29.—JESS WILLARD, the heavyweight champion, will arrive in Toledo Saturday night and will settle down to training Sunday for his championship contest with Jack Dempsey here July 4. It is announced by Ray C. Archer, business representative of the champion, upon his arrival from Los Angeles today, that Willard tipped the scale at 258½ pounds five days ago, which is a half pound below the weight he made for his fight with Frank Monaghan in New York in 1916, his last championship match.

Browns' Hurlers Outclassed All Save White Sox

Burke's Pitchers Since May 13 Have Compiled Earned Run Average of 2.07.

BIG FOUR UNBEATABLE

Shocker, Gallia, Sotheron and Weillman Prove Merit Against Strong Foes.

That the Browns' pitchers have been outdone only by those of the Chicago White Sox, who at present are leading their nearest competitors in the American League by two games, since the Burkenmen started winning is the fact brought out by the figures. A search through the box scores since May 13 brings to light that the Brown hurlers have yielded 2.07 runs per game against 1.84 for the Sox hurlers.

In 12 contests, or 109 rounds, the local twirlers have been tallied upon 25 times, while those of the White Sox have given 26 in 120 frames.

The great slugging of the White Sox hurlers has been due mainly to Eddie Cicotte, who has yielded only three runs in 36 innings; Urban Fieber and Claude Williams. For the Sox to continue at their present pace this trio must continue to hurl as they have done to date, as the box scores show that Gleason does not own the second string pitchers Burke is possessing.

Browns Have Hurling Advantage. While Gleason has only "Burr Three," Burke has four reliable boxmen in Urban Shocker, Bert Gallia, Allan Sotheron and Carl Weillman. Then Davenport, Wright, Koob and Leifeld are on hand to help out. Davenport and Wright are figured to win the hurling contest. Wright, who has not started this season, was one of the club's real winners in 1918.

However, omitting the White Sox, the Browns have outclassed the hurlers of all other things. The fingers of Miller Huggins' Yankees are next to the Browns, having yielded 2.88 runs a game. Pitchers for the second place Cleveland team have given 47 in 108 innings, an average of 3.87.

Red Sox Pitchers Disappoint. One of the surprises brought out by the "dope" is the exceptionally poor showing of the Red Sox' band of stars. In the clashes since May 13, Barrow's boxmen have permitted 61 runs in 102 rounds, for more than five a contest. This is the poorest record of any club in the circuit.

The figures on the A. L. pitchers since May 13 follow:

CLUB. R. H. BB. SO. Inn. Ave. Chicago.....26 97 21 42 129 1.98 Browns.....25 100 35 45 130 2.07 New York.....30 71 29 27 98 2.88 Cleveland.....47 117 29 34 108 3.87 Detroit.....48 122 32 25 104 4.02 Philadelphia.....45 116 38 19 101 4.23 Washington.....48 92 38 28 91 4.77 Boston.....61 121 46 22 102 5.40

While the Browns' pitchers have fairly held their own with the White Sox the batters of the Burke clan also have been doing almost as well as those of the Sox. The White Sox for these battles have a mark of 2.68, while those of the Browns have a .264 figure.

The Browns have scored 37 for the White Sox. The Sox have counted 104 hits in 358 times at bat and the Browns 94 in 355 at bats.

Joe Bennett Released.

When Joe Bennett was released to the Columbus club of the American Association yesterday, the hurling staff of Jimmie Burkenmen was down to eight members. For the remainder of the campaign the Burkeviki will carry Urban Shocker, Bert Gallia, Wayne Wright, Allan Sotheron and Dave Davenport as right-handers and Carl Weillman, Ernie Koob and Lefty Leifeld for southpaws.

Giants' Great Showing. McGraw's Giants made a great showing at the expense of the West in the first intercontinental series in the National League, winning 10 of 15 games. With this spurt from the Gotham crew, the East captured 29 of the 50 contests staged. For the West Cincinnati was the leader with 4-6. The Cardinals took seven of the 12.

West. W. L. East. W. L. Cin.....6 6 New York 10 3 Pitts.....6 8 Phil.....7 6 St. Louis.....2 8 Brook.....6 6 Cards.....4 8 Boston.....5 7

After their successful stand at home, the Browns are scheduled to depart tonight on the first extended road tour of the campaign. The Burkeviki will open in Detroit with two games tomorrow. Urban Shocker and Carl Weillman are scheduled to face the Juggernauts.

St. Louis Country Club

St. Louis Country Club yesterday announced its team selection in the competition for the Brock trophy which will be held in conjunction with the transatlantic tournament next month. St. Louis City, former T-M champion, Arthur Stickney, former city title holder, and Harry Potter and Larry Dwyer, two members of the title throng, will represent the Price Road Club.

Inasmuch as the competition will be held on the Louis Country Club course, and these men are all familiar with the ways and greens, the entry list receives serious consideration in the contest for the plaque.

The Forest Park Golf Club is the only other local club to announce its team, and expects that the others will make their selections next week.

C. Wolff Reaches Algonquin Final

Clarence Wolff reached the finals round of the Algonquin Club spring handicap tournament, yesterday, when he defeated L. C. Brown, 4 up and 2 to play. Wolff allowed his opponent 18 strokes handicap.

He will meet in the finals round the winner of the Lord-Morrison match, which was played last Saturday, but must be replayed. Lord was two up on his opponent at the end of play, but Morrison's two-stroke handicap allowed him to win the match. The rules of the tournament provide that an additional 15 strokes be played.

The final round match will be a 24-hole affair, and played on Sunday.

GOLF CLUBS ARRANGE MEMORIAL DAY CARDS

Several of the local golf and country clubs have arranged Memorial day programs for tomorrow afternoon. Players at the Normandie Club will participate in a flag tournament, based on the official club handicap list. The gratis score will be added to the course bogey, the total being the player's stroke allowance. The entrants will then play their allowance, planting their flag at the points where their last strokes carry them.

The Forest Park Golf Club will have its holiday putting, approaching and driving contests. Instead of having match or medal play tournaments on holidays, the municipal golfers always compete in single club contests.

Midland Valley and Algonquin have arranged handicap matches against St. Ridgeville will have a Ball Sweepstakes.

Stein to Bowl Smith.

Otto Stein, local tennisman, and Jimmy Smith, formerly of New York, but now of Milwaukee, will meet in a 20-game total pin game at the Washington alley next Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights. Stein recently lost a 45-game match to Frank Caruana of Buffalo.

Those Early Kings!

She was very charming—this nurse from one of the units of our "center." Like many visitors to France, she was seized with the desire for souvenirs, and, being of a practical turn of mind, decided to make the purchase of a pair of evening slippers. The intended deal was to be consummated at the Nouvelle Gallerie, and to simplify matters she had enlisted the services of an interpreter.

After some difficulty she succeeded in selecting a particularly attractive pair, which, the clerk assured her, were known as the "Louis Fourteenth."

"They're awfully nice," she remarked, holding them admiringly to the light, "but a trifle too large. I think a 'Louis Thirteenth' would just fit me."

But the interpreter was kind and smiling.—The Martian.

"Henry, my dearest friend told me a girl in France is writing you."

"The deuce she did! Well, the little girl who writes to me is a mere child about 7 years old. You see, I—er—was billeted with her family."

"But how can a child of that age write you 16-page letters?"

"Oh—er—she dictates them to her dear old grandmother."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

PROOF.

John Burroughs, who's a shark on birds, (He classifies 'em by a feather.) Avers that they're devoid of words And simply cannot talk together. He gives the nature-fakers fits Who picture birds in conversation, And tears their story books to bits In scientific indignation.

But there's a wren outside my door That talks whenever I go near him, And talks so glibly, furthermore, That I just wish that John could hear him, Of mornings, when I stroll about The while he hymns his glad thanksgiving. He interrupts himself to shout: "Hey! Ain't it glorious to be living?"

But if too near his nest I stray Again he pauses in mid-carol Darts past my head, and chatters: "Say! 'You touch my nestlings at your peril! 'We're small, but we have dagger beaks; 'Just try to climb that tree. I dare you.' And, when I turn away, he shrieks: 'You great, big brute! I know I'd scare you!'"

And when he's speaking to a cat And lets his wrath flow forth unstinted, I solemnly assure you that The things he says cannot be printed. Perhaps John never happened by When birds' emotions deeply stirred 'em, For, though he's wiser far than I, I know that birds can talk. I've heard 'em!
